MAYOR AND M.O.H. BLAME MEASLES LAW

Major Industry For Town Is Possible, Visitors Impressed

COUNCIL HAS TWO SPECIAL MEETINGS TO STUDY PROPOSALS

HAVE 100 EMPLOYEES

Whether the town should invest in a factory building, in order to secure a textile industry which is now considering moving to Newmarket, has been under discussion at meetings of the town council on Friday and Monday evenings.

The industry employs about 100, including at least 80 girls, and are considering moving to Newmarket for two reasons, first, to be nearer their retail stores, and second, to have a better supply of help available, it was stated.

The industry is now located in the province of Quebec, but most of its stores are in the province of Ontario. The firm in question also expects a shortage of labor where it is now located due to the decision of another firm to move into that town.

The firm is asking for a modern factory building, which they could rent, with 17,000 to 20,000 square feet of floor space, and a sprinkler system, and the cost of moving to Newmarket, estimated at $3,000.

Councillors A. V. Higginson and A. D. Evans, accompanied by N. L. Mathews, K.C., town clerk and solicitor, and H. E. Lambert, manager of the Newmarket branch of the Bank of Toronto, visited the factory last week and reported themselves favorably impressed.

Representatives of the firm were in Newmarket yesterday to look at possible factories, including the east building of the Dixon Pencil Co. and W. H. Eves' lumber storage building, formerly the property of Robin-

Quarantine Failure Doctors Allege As Cases Mount To 170

DR. S. J. BOYD TELLS HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION LAW NO GOOD

SAYS LAW TOO WEAK

"The M.O.H. and the nurse have done a lot of work during this measles epidemic, but the law is so lax that it makes their work useless, in my opinion," Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd told the Home and School association at Stuart Scott school on Tuesday evening.

"My impression is that quarantine is not long enough, not strict enough," said Dr. Boyd. "The disease is really spreading over the whole town just the same as if there were no quarantine, only more slowly. The law allows too much freedom. At one time the law required three weeks quarantine."

Dr. Boyd was asked his opinion on a number of topics. One was toxoiding.

"Toxoiding is a very valuable procedure," said Dr. Boyd. "It is effective almost 100 per cent in diphtheria. People wonder why toxoiding for scarlet fever takes five treatments, and for diphtheria only three. In my opinion if they took five for scarlet fever, it would likely protect the child for a lifetime. But it is a new remedy, it hasn't been proven, and we can't speak from experience."

Dr. Boyd was asked about supervised play.

"The teachers should take turns going out with the children to their play," said Dr. Boyd. "No rules would be necessary, but if the teacher were present, there would be no swearing, fighting or misconduct. The best way is to have not too many laws. The more rules you have, the more trouble you have enforcing them, and the more joy you take out of the children's lives."

Asked what he thought about improving the condition of the school basements, Dr. Boyd said: "We have an efficient school board that will attend to the basements, if they need attention, as soon as possible. The board can spend only so much money each year, and there are so many ways to spend it."

With regard to defective eyesight among school children, Dr. Boyd said that "the Lions club is very efficient in that work, and the town is very fortunate in having an active Lions club."

HEAT TURNED ON

Hot weather hit Newmarket this week. Broken by a heavy drenching rain on Sunday, the streaming sunshine meant rapid growth in gardens.

DR. WESLEY SAYS PARENTS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF LAW

TALKS TO DEPARTMENT

Agreement with Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd's opinion on the inadequacy of the measles quarantine law was expressed to The Era by Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., yesterday. Dr. Wesley said that the total number of cases had reached 170.

At the outbreak of this epidemic Dr. Wesley was quarantining for two weeks instead of one, as provided by law, he stated. Parents began to complain and he took the matter up with provincial department of health officials, who told him that he must take the entire responsibility if he interpreted the law in that way. Lacking support from the department, and facing criticism from parents, Dr. Wesley dropped the two weeks in favor of one week.

The law is defective, in his belief, however, and he is bringing the full facts of the present Newmarket epidemic to the attention of the department, with the object of urging them to improve the law.

"The present law requires quarantine of the person afflicted seven days from the outbreak of the rash," Dr. Wesley stated. "A child in the same house who has had measles is supposed to be immune, and it is said that it is impossible for him to carry it to other children. Therefore, according to the Health Act, he is permitted to go to school as usual.

"But a child who has not had measles, irrespective of his age, is required by the Health Act to be quarantined for a period of 16 days from the time of his exposure, calculated from the outbreak of the rash on the person he has been exposed to. If anyone is going to get it from someone else, the most likely time would seem to be before the rash breaks out."

Dr. Wesley said that the usual incubation period of the disease is ten or 12 days, but that it can take as long as 15 or 16 days. Thus the 16-day period is not sufficient in the case of a child who catches the disease at some point following the outbreak of the rash on his contact.

Dr. Wesley pointed to two principal defects in the law. One was the one-week quarantine period. The other was the permitting of the immune member of the same family to go to school, "because parents take advantage of this clause and say that their children have previously had measles when they haven't."

McCLYMONT REPORT SHOWS TOWN GETS LION'S SHARE, HE SAYS

CALLS IT PARTNERSHIP

"Owing to the wisdom and foresight of one of the main builders of the town of Newmarket, this place was among the pioneers in the development of municipal light and power," P. W. Pearson, former mayor, now living in Preston, told The Era this week, commenting on an editorial in last week's Era.

"The underlying desire was to give the people of Newmarket light at a much lower price than private ownership did at that time, and also to give better service.

"This was accomplished under the direction and driving power of the late Mayor H. S. Cane.

"For years the town of Newmarket developed and distributed electric power generated by steam. In this field, as in every other, great advances and new discoveries were constantly being made. Development and distribution of power, generated by falling water, was soon to supersede that produced by steam.

"Newmarket has always been fortunate in having municipal men ever on the watch to improve the condition of the people of the town. The leaders of that day made an exhaustive study of the best means to serve the people in the matter of light and power.

"As usual, a difference of opinion arose as to from whom the new power should be purchased. One party desired to be served by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, who offered service at cost, but who would not guarantee what that cost should be. The other party desired to purchase power from the Toronto and York Radial Co. at a low fixed rate, but both parties agreed on one principle, that the town and the people should get their service at cost.

"It was really a partnership between the municipal authorities and the people to get light and power for the partners at the lowest possible cost. On this basis the people voted to accept the offer of the T. & Y. Radial.

"At that time the rates were struck to give the lowest possible domestic rate, and the town, with a comparatively small light and pumping load, was supposed to contribute their just proportion of the expense.

"Time has passed. More and more people are served. Greater and greater loads have been used by the municipal authorities. Judging by the report of the expert employed by the town, the consumers have greatly increased their contribution to the partnership. The municipality has decreased its contribution in proportion to its load.

"All power used by the customers and the municipality, with the exception of that used for 20 minutes in the month, is off-peak power, and it is from the sale of this off-peak power that all costs are met. The people voted to buy power on the understanding that all parties concerned should pay their fair share."

GOES NORTH

Harry Draper, formerly of Mount Albert, who has been with Roadhouse & Rose, Newmarket, is leaving for northern Ontario, on account of poor health.

The Era office will be open on Saturdays from 2 to 5 p.m., but not on Saturday evenings.

BABY SHETLAND DOES GOOD TURN

A baby Shetland pony, born at the farm of Dr. J. C. R. Edwards, at the end of Gorham St., on Tuesday, stood only five and a half hands high, that is, 22 inches, and was as pretty a thing as ever was seen. The new pony is a thoroughbred.

Considerable interest was aroused as word got around about the new arrival and there was quite a pilgrimage to the Edwards farm to see the miniature pony.

The second troop of Boy Scouts decided to capitalize on the interest aroused and brought the pony into town today to show it in a circus tent for so much a look. The pony is being exhibited on the lawn behind Trinity United church and may be on exhibition again tomorrow.

M.O.H. Warns He May Have To Prosecute Measles Chisellers

MOST CO-OPERATING BUT FEW TO BLAME, DR. WESLEY SAYS

WILL LAY CHARGES

Dr. J. H. Wesley, M. O. H., states: "In spite of all the vigilance of the sanitary inspectors, the health nurse and the different teachers, the epidemic of measles continues to invade the children in town; still there are not so many new cases this week.

"With the exception of a very few cases, the parents are co-operating with the health officers and giving their help to stamp out this disease. There are a few cases in which the disease has not been reported, and the householders or parents are taking the chance of being hailed into police court, where there is always a heavy fine to pay for not reporting according to the terms of the provincial department of health.

"In this connection your M. O. H. hopes that he will not have to resort to the law in order to check the disease. It is not long since a young man was fined $25 in the police court in Newmarket for breaking quarantine for measles. This excited the sympathy of your M. O. H. to such an extent that he will be very sorry to have to do it again.

"If two people had played the game fair in the commencement of this epidemic there would have been only one placard put up. Earlier in the year there was a case of measles at Pickering College, but there was prompt and sufficient quarantine with the result there was only the one case."

THROWN BY COLT FARMER INJURED

Harold Rose, Sutton farmer, was taken to Toronto General hospital after being thrown by a colt and landing in a pile of stones. He suffered a compound fracture of his leg and head injuries.

New Stars For Champion Crew Make Choice Tough

ONE OF BEST TEAMS IN YEARS PROMISED FOR 1939 SEASON

Newmarket softball players are gradually rounding into fine form, after a late start, and have played a couple of exhibition games with Pickering College before commencing their regular schedule. Newmarket came out on top on both occasions.

The Redmen have added a few new faces to their line-up and should be able to field a stronger team than last year.

Al White, last season with Richmond Hill, has migrated to Newmarket and looks good enough in work-outs to hold down the third sack.

Bill Neufeldt, last year with Sharon, has lined up with the Redmen this year and will make a strong bid for the initial base. "Bill" should add a little color to the club both in field and at bat.

Herbie Cain, a former town league star, will gather in the balls from the centre field garden and should be a tower of strength on the offensive when he gets his batting eye.

Harry Draper and Doug. Trivett are among other newcomers trying to make a place on the Reds' machine and both will be hard to keep off the line-up.

Carl Welsh, another newcomer from Queensville, has been donning the mask behind the plate and with a little more experience will stack up against the best in the league.

Members of last year's championship team, available for this year, are as follows: C. VanZant, Niles, Webster, Peters, Hilton, Cunningham, Giles, Gibney and Luck.

YOUTHFUL SOFTBALLER SUFFERS INJURY

Jack Luck, Jr., received a back injury while out practising softball last Thursday night. It will probably keep him out of the game for about three weeks. Jack is getting along nicely.

Think King Would Pause If He Knew Village History

MOUNT ALBERT PEOPLE CAME TO NEWMARKET TO SEE KING EDWARD

By ELIZABETH LEEK

Mount Albert citizens think that if King George and Queen Elizabeth knew the history of the naming of their village that he would want to stop at Mount Albert as well as Zephyr on Tuesday, June 6.

On Sept. 7, 1860, Prince Albert Edward, later King Edward VII, on his tour of Canada, officiated at the opening of the Grand Trunk Railway from Toronto to Barrie, making a stop at Newmarket and addressing the people.

At that time Mount Albert was "Newland" P.O. The entire population of the little settlement went to Newmarket to see Queen Victoria's son and their future king.

The postmaster of "Newland," the late John Leek, William Mainprize, William Stokes and George Rear applied to the postmaster-general to have the name of the post office changed to Mount Albert, in honor of the bonnie prince.

If his majesty knew of this bit of history in connection with his grandfather and the loyalty of the pioneers of Newland, he would surely make a brief pause at Mount Albert.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE

The present measles epidemic is an excellent argument for a permanent public health or school nurse. Dr. J. H. Wesley, M. O. H., has repeatedly pointed out the excellent work done by a nurse during times of epidemic. Dr. Wesley has made the point that the nurse has done more than help track down the epidemic disease. She has also discovered unsatisfactory home conditions, and has done, by way of advice, what she could to remedy them. A health nurse could easily earn her salary in the course of a year, in savings to the municipality for indigent hospitalization, to the school boards, and in enhanced health of the citizens. Think what it would mean to cut short just one epidemic a year.

Would Help Medical Men

Nor would the employment of a public health nurse interfere with the livelihood of the medical profession. On the contrary, a nurse would make the public more health conscious and urge people in need of medical attention to see a doctor. A nurse would also help the medical men in carrying their present indigent load. Doctors have lots of non-paying patients to visit, and it would lighten their burden considerably if there were a nurse available to make a regular visit and carry out the doctor's instructions. A health nurse would also see that school children got needed dental work done.

Depends on the Nurse

A public health nurse, of course, could be a failure. Everything would depend on the personality of the individual chosen. Bowmanville board of health dismissed its public health nurse a year ago, and following a public protest has now filled the position again. The new nurse graduated from Bowmanville Hospital, took post-graduate public health training in Toronto under the V. O. N., spending four and a half years with this organization, served for two years as nurse and matron at the Canadian School in Cheng-Tu, China, and served on the nursing staff of Ontario Training School for Boys, Bowmanvlle. She will work under the supervision of the M. O. H. and the board of health.

SHOPWORK AND HOME ECONOMICS

Between 80 and 100 secondary schools have already provided the new courses in shop-work and household economics. Newmarket is not among them. We like to think that the world could be made over into an ideal society, with everybody pulling for the other fellow, and everybody getting an equal opportunity to educate himself and get the fullest enjoyment out of life. "They" tell us, however, that it can't be done overnight. That being so, we like to see the world doing the immediate things that are practical and possible toward re-making our world. One of the practical things, it seems to us, toward giving the fellow who is most likely to become unemployed a better chance in life is the new high school curriculum. We speak of the boys' courses, but the girls' courses would be of great value too in raising the standard of living, making the income go farther, in many a future home.

Voted Down Once

Our high school board caught the vision of the provincial department of education, and, encouraged by a favorable public reaction, they took the proposal to the town council and asked that the council arrange a vote of the people. A goodly number of citizens voted in approval of this new departure in the high school, involving an expenditure of $12,000, half of the total cost. More, however, voted against it. Some didn't know what the vote was all about, some were opposed to any increase in debentures, and a few thought that the high school board should unite with the public and separate school boards to provide technical accommodation for all for the future.

Winning Public Approval

It was an unfortunate rebuff to the high school board, but it seems obvious that the changes will have to come eventually, and that it is up to those who are interested in the welfare of youth in the town to try to change public opinion, to enlist more support. Perhaps the high school board can co-operate with the public and separate school boards to advantage, but in any event high school students should have the opportunity to substitute mechanics for classics. The best way to change public opinion is for the high school board to hold regular monthly meetings, attended by the press, and let the reports of the discussion of this problem go out to the public. That would overcome the feeling that the high school board is trying to "railroad" something.

Press Should Be Present

People sometimes ask The Era why we do not report high school board meetings. We do our best. The Era has made quite an effort to learn about high school board meetings and to be present. The meetings take place at irregular times, however, and the press is not informed of them. The Era was present at a meeting about a year ago and asked that the press be informed of the meetings and that desk and facilities for reporting be provided. The board agreed unanimously that this should be done. In the year that has intervened we have been advised of one meeting and that meeting we attended and reported. We do believe that the board would find itself in closer touch with the public, and the public more in sympathy with its efforts and actions, if the press were always present at meetings. The town council now has a splendid new chamber, and we suggest that the high school board hold its meetings there at regular dates, so that the press and public may attend if they wish. We suggest too that the board follow the policy of the town council and inform the press of all special meetings, no matter how hurriedly called and no matter for how trivial a purpose, and give the press an opportunity to attend. After all, the board's business is public business.

MAY BUY NEW TRUCK TOO

The police village of Claremont is charged with not having a 1939 license for its fire truck. Two weeks ago the truck, said to be decrepit, was on its way to a fire, carrying its usual 1936 plates, when a suddenly wide-awake constable noted the plates and decided to make a charge. It is said that the outcome may be the purchase of a new fire-truck with 1939 license plates.

HE LENT A HELPING HAND

Circulation manager of the Toronto Star, William L. Argue died last week. He was one of the best-known newspaper circulation men on the continent. On one occasion, two or three years ago, we went to him for advice and found him helpful, friendly and interested in a weekly's problems. Big men are usually like that.

OPPOSITE IS TRUE

In discussing the possibility of extending the one-fare street-car ride to adjoining Toronto suburbs, the Toronto Telegram says: "Toronto car riders might as well be asked to help pay bus fares for patrons of the inter-urban bus lines." The interesting fact is that "patrons of the inter-urban bus lines" in effect help to pay the fares of Toronto street-car riders, for Gray Coach Lines pays a profit to its parent company, the Toronto Transportation Company. The Yonge St. radial, to some extent a competitor of Gray Coach Lines, is also operated by the T. T. C. but is owned by the municipalities which it serves. It is operated at a loss, which of course falls upon the proprietary municipalities. As a matter of fact, we can be very glad that Gray Coach Lines are operated at a profit, for lower fares would send more business away to Toronto stores. It might pay Toronto to operate suburban bus lines even at a loss.

SOMEBODY READ IT

Mr. P. W. Pearson disagrees with some of the statements made in last week's editorial concerning the McClymont report. Most particularly Mr. Pearson disagrees with the statement that the plant operates at a loss or ever operated at a loss and with conclusions based on that premise. He disagrees too with the statement that property-owners paid off the debentures. Instead, he says, the plant paid for the debentures, the upkeep and gave the town a profit. The Era's argument was that a few years ago, when debenture payments were heavier, the plant "must have been operating at a loss," but not, of course, if Mr. McClymont's allowances for street-lighting and power for the water department are accepted. We mentioned 1935 last week. Figures for 1938 are the first to show the water and light departments separated. In the 1936 auditor's report the combined water and light statement for 1935 showed a profit of $1,577. If the water department is credited with even half of its 1938 surplus of $5,203, the light department in 1935 would be left with a loss.

Better Than We Thought

That is the thought that we had in mind, but the water department's profit in 1935 may have been less than half of what it was in 1938, investigation seems to indicate. From 1935 to 1938 the water department's consumption revenue increased by $2,591, and its debenture payments decreased by $740, so that, other expenses being equal, the water department's surplus in 1935 would be $3,331 less than in 1938, that is, only $1,872. That would leave the loss of the electric light department only $295 as compared with the loss of $1,765 shown in the 1938 auditor's report. Our thought was that because of larger debenture payments the showing would have been poorer in 1935. However, expenditures on the electric system were $2,575 heavier in 1938 than in 1935, and salaries were heavier.

Double-Checked

There is another way of checking up on 1935, and at the same time we can look at Mr. Pearson's belief that a continually heavier load of household appliances in recent years, sharpening the peak, has more than offset any lightening in the debenture load. Mr. Pearson agrees with Mr. McClymont's heavy allowances for power for the water-works and street-lighting and he contends that not only is the plant paying now, but that it has always paid.

Loss For Water Department

Consumption revenue (not including any allowance for municipal power or light), cost of purchased power and electric light debentures for the two years were: 1935, $38,360, $34,027, $3,252; 1938; $43,795, $40,297, $1,690. In other words, the margin between cost and selling revenue decreased by $840, and the debentures decreased by 1,562. Mr. Pearson's thought is likely true with regard to a longer period of years, but not with regard to 1935. The same figures again indicate that we were wrong in thinking that the department's showing was poorer in 1935 than in 1938, for we have only a net amount of $722 to set against greater expenditures of $2,575 in 1938 than in 1935. Other things being equal, the electric light department should have done better in 1935 by $1,853. Set this against the 1938 loss of $1,765 and you get a profit for 1935 of $88. Lower salaries in 1935 would make this profit bigger. In any event, Mr. McClymont's allowances for street-lighting and water department power would give the electric light department quite a nice profit in 1935, and leave the water department with a loss.

A Matter of Language

Mr. Pearson also objects to the statement that off-peak power doesn't cost anything, although he approves of the thought intended if put this way, that using additional off-peak power does not increase the town's power bill. He points out that the department does not pay for the peak only but for the whole month as though it were all peak. It follows, Mr. Pearson argues, that the department must not give away any power, even if it is off-peak. In other words, most of the power used, in fact, all the power except for 20 minutes in the entire month, is off-peak and if it were sold on the theory that it had not cost anything the department would soon be insolvent. Mr. Pearson, however, admits a difference between power that happens to be off-peak and power that could not possibly be on-peak, for instance, power for the water-works motors, turned on when the demand is low, and street lights during the spring, summer and fall months, turned on after the electric stoves go off. This is the power which we spoke of as, Mr. Pearson thinks mistakenly, costing nothing beyond the cost of equipment, overhead, etc.

For the Consumer

The only legitimate way for the town to avoid three mills on the tax rate, as found by Mr. McClymont, for street-lighting is to reduce the number of lights on the streets, Mr. Pearson contends. The only way to avoid two mills on the tax-rate for power for the water department, he believes, is to reduce the amount of power used. We believe that the town as administrator of the system should get this power for a little bit over the cost of wear and tear, overhead, etc. Mr. Pearson says no, the town should pay the same as a commercial buyer of off-peak power would pay. At the present time the department is selling no off-peak power except to the town, and so there is no standard of price by which to measure the charges to the town. The basis of Mr. Pearson's arguments is that the system is operated, not for the municipality, but for the consumer and that the consumer should get all the benefits and reductions.

A Point of Agreement

In our conversation with Mr. Pearson we reached agreement on one subject, namely, that the present domestic rating favors the well-to-do householder. With more electrical equipment in his home, the well-to-do householder gets a large proportion of one-half cent power, whereas his poorer neighbor may have a substantial proportion of three cent and one-and-one-half cent power. Instead of allowing an unlimited quantity of half-cent power, Mr. Pearson would allow the present 25 KWH at three cents, the present 50 KWH at one and one-half cents and then 300 KWH at one-half cent, and the balance at one cent. It seems like a fair suggestion. If the system is paying now, such an increase might make possible a slight decrease in one or both of the first two brackets rates. At the present time electric power in Newmarket is not cheap unless you have the equipment and can afford to use a lot of it. To him that hath shall be given. If Mr. Pearson's suggestion would kill the goose that lays the golden egg, perhaps the first two brackets could be reduced and the third bracket increased slightly. The present rating has outlived its usefulness.

The Common Round

MONDAY, MAY 22ND

By Isabel Inglis Colville

There are days that we store away in our memories—they are as fragrant with unforgettable things as the rose leaves and rosemary in which we wrapped our confirmation veils and our letters from overseas.

When the morning of the 22nd dawned so grey and overcast, we felt a little pang of disappointment, but—it wasn't raining and before five D.S.T., we were up and doing.

The man of the house had but one thought in mind—he was going, with his old comrades, to see the symbols of that for which he fought—and besides—was not one of them, like himself, a child of the hills and heather?

So, with breakfast but a name—for who cared what they ate?—we were off and I must say, reached Toronto in less time than usually clocks our quiet pilgrimages. "You look after the car," commanded my spouse, as he fled in the general direction of Yonge Street and the street car.

So mother and I made our way into our friend's house to learn the plans for the morning.

"Frank and I have been sent seats on the university campus for the trooping of the colors," said my cousin," and you and Kathleen have seats reserved for you in a house on Yonge St., just a block below the station."

"That's great," said I, as we all sat down peacefully to toast and coffee.

A little after eight Kay and I set out for our destination. We had to walk, of course, for we knew that no vehicles were allowed after 8 a.m. We thought we had ONLY to walk there!

Have you ever had a nightmare, in which you tried to do something and couldn't? That was exactly the feeling we experienced.

We had come along streets west of Yonge, emerging near Yorkminster. As we walked on, those of you who were in that north Toronto rush, know what we got into.

People to right of us, people to left of us, on the road; on the pavements; people with ladders, with camp chairs, with stilts. Babies in arms, and old, old people, being helped along.

But it was a gay crowd—people were intent on getting there, but they were happy, too.

But when we got near the station and tried to make our way along—we were walled in—a solid wall of humanity and a barrier of some kind against which people leaned.

We showed our tickets—only to be told there was absolutely no use trying to get through—the police wouldn't let us even if the crowd would.

So here was "a pretty mess—a pretty howdydo."

"We'll have to go all the way along the block to Avenue Road and then to Yonge BELOW the station and we won't have far to go," said Kay.

So, joining hundreds of others—some with tickets for stands and seats on Yonge, like ourselves, and some just looking for a spot from which to see, we hurried along.

When we came in sight of Yonge I gasped, for if it had been crowded above the station, it was bedlam below.

We begged and prayed, and even offered to pay for a way through, but one might as well have tried to move the pyramids of old Egypt.

"What will we do?" agonized Kay, "there's no hope here."

"Let's go back the way we came," I suggested, "we are near the station and might catch a glimpse."

So back over those same streets we went, meeting crowds coming towards us, who were kind enough to tell us—"No use going there."

However, we went, and managed, being small, to worm a little way in, and stood on one foot and then the other, thinking of our nice seats almost within sight and our waiting hostess.

I could see nothing but backs and the high tower and the tops of the arches.

In front of me, as at last we heard the train, a man said, "Can you see anything?"

As I shook my head, he pushed me in front of him and now I could get peeks between heads—if they were ever still. I could see the mounted policemen, sitting like statues, facing us, from each arch of the bridge. I could see the Dragoons—their horses like polished bronze, their helmets gold, their scarlet tunics making a great splash of color, in the sombre greyness of the day.

Then—as the king and queen stepped toward their car—it was like a veil descending—the crowd in front closed up and I saw not one thing!

I could have wept, and I guess a few salt drops did bedew the ground at my feet, but I was ashamed, when I saw some things—I saw a veteran, no taller than I, or very little, not able to see himself, lift his little son high, that the child might see his king.

I saw a little boy give up his treasured periscope to let an old woman see a little, and other people expressed what we all felt when they said, "We wouldn't have missed the thrill." When the band played "God Save the King," it was echoed as a prayer, in every heart, and not one of us but added—and the queen!

So we wandered back home and listened to the broadcasts and rested our blistered toes, and had lunch, and then back from duty at three, came my other half.

"I saw them twice—and oh the queen!" said he, "wasn't she wonderful?" he went on. "I never saw her," said I, dolefully, as the rest compared notes and my husband imbibed hot soup.

"Didn't see her! Didn't SEE her?!!!" he almost yelled, "Well, you're going to, if I have to CARRY you."

So behold us, blisters, aches and woes forgotten, hieing us off to St. Clair.

My cousin, who had attended the trooping of the colors had been too far away to get a good look, so she came too, and we got a splendid place—only a row of little children ahead.

And we stood there, quite happily, for an hour and a half. It was like one immense, happy family. The carillon on Eaton Memorial church played lovely old tunes, and the crowd hummed and cheered at nothing and camera fiends stood with their weapons poised, and people hung out of windows from perilous angles, and maintained footholds in places where one never imagined, in ordinary times that there were footholds, and then—a strange hush fell for a moment, followed by such a roar as I've never heard or imagined—and the royal car swept by, and one great articulate gasp came from the crowd—"Oh, but she's beautiful!"

It was a sort of breath of rapture. I felt the tears start as I looked at the most beautiful and sweetest face I have ever seen—and then she was gone—and a great sense of loss seemed to fall over the crowd.

"But I saw her," said one woman, looking away into space, as if she saw a vision.

"She belongs in a fairy tale," I heard someone else say. I caught a glimpse of the king and he looked just as he should, as friend husband said, "You'd have seen him fine the THIRD time—you had to have the other twice to see HER."

And if the king could have looked into the hearts of the hundreds of thousands of his subjects who waited so patiently that day, he would have seen no disloyalty to himself, but the involuntary adoration of a woman, who, although she is a fairy tale queen, is yet a mother, a wife, and a great-souled lady as well.

We took the king for granted. He already had our homage and our loyalty—we knew enough of him for that, but the queen took us unawares. We had not visioned her loveliness—either of feature or the soul that shone through—she swept away the barriers that hedge royalty, and without losing one whit of dignity, yet let us see the WOMAN behind that barrier.

From henceforth she will be rooted in the hearts of her people—enshrined with our nearest and dearest.

As we drove home, through the quiet twilight; through a countryside where already the scent of lilac was coming like the ghost of a perfume and where tulips spread like an Arabian Nights carpet, I said wearily but firmly, oh so FIRMLY, "I'm tired—my feet are blistered, my bones and head ache, but I'd walk it all again tonight to see her again!"

"AMEN," said my spouse.

POLICE COURT

COMMITTED ON CHARGE OF THEFT OF $1,550

Preliminary hearing on a charge of theft of $1,550 laid against R. D. McIntyre, Toronto, was held at the police court here on Tuesday and Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe committed McIntyre for trial.

Dean Wills, Toronto, as defence counsel, pleaded not guilty to the charge and elected trial by jury. The money was the property of Arthur L. Graham, Mount Albert.

In answer to the questioning of N. L. Mathews, K. C., crown attorney, Mr. Graham stated that he boarded at the home of Jaggar Oldham and that he had known McIntyre since November, 1938, when he came to the Oldham home to see about a stock transaction.

"I saw McIntyre again on Jan. 3, 1939, when he returned to Oldham's and asked me if I wanted to dispose of the stocks I had in three different companies," stated Graham. "I gave him the stocks in the three companies that day with the understanding that I was to receive a first mortgage on some cemetery property with interest at six per cent and also some mining stocks. McIntyre later gave me a statement of the stocks he received from me. The stocks I gave McIntyre were to the value of $1,367.02 and then on Jan. 27 he gave me a receipt for $182.98 which I gave to him in cash to make the amount up to $1,550. Of the amount I gave McIntyre $1,300 was to be used for the first mortgage and the remaining $250 was to buy mining stock. I didn't receive either the mortgage or the mining stock.

The next time I saw McIntyre was on March 29 and when I asked him about a receipt for the stocks and money I had given him he said he thought he had sent me a receipt," continued Graham. "I told him I hadn't received any recepit, so he gave me one. The next day I went to Toronto and visited a solicitor and consulted him about the receipt. The lawyer wrote a letter to McIntyre and I took it to his office on Yonge St. but he was not there, so I left the letter with someone in the office. I have never heard from McIntyre since March 29, until last Sunday when a friend of his brought me a note."

"The receipt given to Graham by McIntyre was in reality a promissory note for six months," stated Mr. Mathews.

"Did you read the receipt when McIntyre gave it to you?" asked Mr. Wills.

"No, answered Mr. Graham. "McIntyre told me not to read it for a while, so I did not read it until the next day."

"Didn't you give McIntyre a signed receipt for $1,550?"

"Yes."

"Did you receive a six months promissory note from McIntyre?"

"Yes."

"This has been laid as a charge of theft but I don't think there is sufficient evidence for a committal," stated Mr. Wills.

"I think on the facts given by Mr. Graham there is sufficient evidence to commit McIntyre for trial on the charge of theft," stated Magistrate Woodliffe. Bail will be set by a county judge.

Two charges of having unlawful possession of liquor and keeping liquor for sale laid against Arthur and Catherine Holley, Holland Landing, which have been adjourned for several weeks, were adjourned for another two weeks. IDLE HANDS GET BUSY

BY RUTH DINGMAN HEBB

The kettle of editorial indignation boils over upon reading an article in the June issue of the Chatelaine magazine, entitled "Prepared for Service," by Isabel Turnbull Dingman, and illustrated with a picture of four young women, some of them dressed in uniform, marching forward in determined military fashion. In the background is a tin-helmetted soldier, complete with forward-pointed bayonet.

The article deals, in terms of enthusiastic approbation, with a new organization, the Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women, which plans, with the co-operation of women's clubs, to send canvassers out to all homes across the dominion, with the exception of Quebec, in order to register Canadian women, and to secure detailed information as to their training, and as to what type of work they would be able to do in the event of a national emergency, presumably war.

Questions asked in the survey, the article explains, will include inquiries as to what technical training, if any, the women have had, as chemists, biologists, physicians, nurses, dietitians, first aid workers, etc. ". . . what experience or training in manufacturing or inspecting munitions, hospital supplies and clothing; whether she can drive a car, what kind of license she has, and whether she could drive in a black-out . . ."

We are amazed that a movement of this kind has found any support in this country. It is true that a similar scheme in England has been sponsored and financed by the government, but there is certainly far more justification there for a certain amount of hysteria as a result of the uneasy European situation, or even for a more practical planning for emergency. As for Canada, we can see no sane reason why women should not be able to find something a thousand times more worth-while to do, in view of the many crying needs of our beloved country.

A registration system of this nature certainly savors strongly of fascism and the things we are trying to avoid on this side of the Atlantic. The article makes one immediately picture a condition in which Canada is undergoing black-outs, and the women are being feverishly rushed into the making of munitions. Surely this is ridiculous in the face of all present indications. Of what encouragement are the women of Canada to the statesmen of peace-loving countries, who are working incessantly toward peace and a settlement of difficulties, if we rush thoughtlessly into a war-minded enterprise such as this?

"It is expected that most women approached will be willing to co-operate, though if canvassers find anyone hostile to the scheme, or openly disloyal, that information too will be filed," the article avers. This seems to put the scheme into the category of an enemy of freedom of thought, surely something which Canadian women want to avoid. Not only that, but it suggests that hostility to the scheme is synonymous with disloyalty—indeed, a grossly unfair contention. We wonder just what use would be made of a list of names of those women who saw fit to oppose the silly scheme. And we wonder what possible useful use could be made, even in time of war, of such a list. Once war were declared, and men were called to service, a large number of women would no longer be available for the services listed, and the list would be out-of-date. It's preposterous!

KESWICK

YOUNG PEOPLE LEAD FINE CHURCH SERVICE

Services at Keswick United church and at the Sunday-school on Sunday, May 21, were in keeping with the spirit which has pervaded since their majesties have come to Canada. Mrs. Wm. Vail and Patti Connell were in charge of the Sunday-school service and Rev. Mr. Fockler preached at both services of the church. Beautiful portraits of the king and queen graced all services.

"The motives behind the dominion and the British empire are religious and Christian — loyalty to the king — yes — but Jesus Christ must be first of all," Mr. Fockler said. The music at all services carried out the theme of the worship, with the choir singing special numbers. Miss M. Willoughby was organist.

Last Sunday the Sunday-school service was under Perry Winch's leadership. Mrs. Ethan Morton was at the piano.

Mr. Fockler exchanged pulpits with Mr. Linsteed of Bethel for Sunday morning. Mr. Linsteed preached a very fine sermon from the text, "Forgive us our debts." George Altridge contributed a beautiful solo. Miss Margaret Fockler was organist. The church was lovely with fragrant lilies of the valley and delightfully pretty tulips.

Announcement was made of the display of W. M. S. quilts on Thursday afternoon at the W. A. meeting, when articles for the bale to be sent in June will be thankfully received by the supply committee of the W. M. S., whose convener is Mrs. John Baines.

The June meeting of the United church W. M. S. will be held in the Sunday-school room of the church on Thursday, June 8, at 2.30 p.m., standard time, when the third vice-president, Miss Joy Marritt, will have charge, being assisted by the temperance committee secretary, Mrs. Hilborn, and by Mrs. Perry Winch, who will review the final chapters of the study book. Everyone is invited.

Choir rehearsal is held each Thursday evening.

The United Y. P. U. held their regular business meeting, followed by a social hour, on Monday evening. A representative of the Bible Society will present an interesting talk, "The opening of the Bible to Africa," with pictures, on Friday evening at 8 p. m.

It is often said that the young people of today are the leaders of tomorrow. If the spirit of worship, enthusiasm and efficiency of the young people in their service at Keswick United church on Sunday evening is any indication of their leadership in the future, the church is indeed fortunate.

The evening service was conducted entirely by the Young People's Union. Miss Joan Baines, president, led the very beautiful worship service, using as the theme the majestic beauty of the hymn, "Unto the hills around do I lift up my longing eyes."

Following the reading of the scripture lesson by Wesley Oldham, the Y. P. U. quartet, Marjorie Glover, Kaye Morton, Ethan Morton and Mr. Fockler, sang an old favourite most acceptably. Doris McGenerty read an appropriate poem. The choir, composed of 21 members of the Y.P.U., sang very heartily, "Lead on, O King Eternal." The poem, "God is at the anvil," read by Joan Baines and the singing of the dedicatory hymn, "We give Thee but Thine Own," following the presentation of the offering by Billy McGenerty and Jim Davison, very appropiately closed the worship service.

A prayer, turning the thoughts of the congregation in thankfulness to God for the beauty of life in nature, home and friends, was led by Jack Winch.

Miss Helen Smith made a very fine contribution to the service through her paper on "Christianity in the modern world."

The life of Edwin Orr, a missionary, whose life of practical faith should challenge every Christian, was revived in a very vivid manner by Charlie Ryder.

Miss Margaret Fockler, in her address on "The relationship of young people to the church," pointed out the place in the church of the young people as well as the older folk and the great need of the church of both. Miss Muriel Willoughby presided at the organ.

Ravenshoe

A large number of relatives and friends gathered on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merton Rutledge and showered Mr. and Mrs. Carl Glover, the bride and groom, with many beautiful and useful gifts.

Mr. Russell Glover is confined to his bed and it is hoped he will soon recover.

Mr. Leslie Stephens is wished a speedy recovery from his recent accident, sustained while watching a ball game.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pollard spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Elmer Pollard.

Little Edna Prosser is in quarantine. A rapid improvement is hoped for.

Mrs. Cummings, Sr., returned home on Sunday after spending several weeks with her son in Toronto.

Belhaven

Mr. Aubrey Kitchener Cunningham, who is with the air force near Ottawa, visited his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Winch, in Belhaven last Sunday, accompanied by a lady friend, his mother, Mrs. Ross Cunningham, Miss Margaret Cunningham, Mr. Laurie Cunningham and Mrs. D. Prosser.

Lilacs are in bloom. It's really apple blossom time in Belhaven, with orioles whistling their tunes, intermingled with various other bird songs, and with dandelions dotted around on the green carpet of grass.

On the second Tuesday in June, the Belhaven Women's Institute are to meet in the hall in the forenoon for a quilting, taking lunch for noon, and holding their usual meeting in the afternoon, when officers for the coming year are to be elected.

Mrs. Nicholas Arksey is in very poor health at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. Kay, in Sutton.

Mrs. M. D. Horner continues improving in health.

6TH CON. N. G.

SEARCHER FINDS HATS OF HERMIT'S VICTIMS

Mrs. J. E. Hopkins has returned home after an enjoyable visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Sedore, Keswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen May of Toronto were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Ley.

Anniversary services will be celebrated at Mount Pleasant church on June 11. There will be special music by the Mount Pleasant choir at the morning service. The Baker Hill ladies' choir will attend the evening service.

A number of ladies from here atended Mrs. H. M. Aitken's cooking school at Queensville United church on Friday. Mrs. Wm. Moulds was among the fortunate ones, having won a delicious cake. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Stephens spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brown.

A group of young people spent May 24 fishing.

Friends are very sorry to hear of serious accidents to two nearby residents and wish them a speedy recovery. Sympathy is extended to these families in their trouble.

Theodore Wight, who is working at Lake Wanapitei near Skead, Ont., was one of the searching party who found the hats belonging to the men believed to be the victims in the hermit murders and also assisted with grappling operations for the bodies.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton made a trip to Newmarket this week.

The king and queen will certainly see the country at its best on their return to this part of it next week.

E. Miller is doing some cement work at L. B. Pollock's fox farm.

Charles McCronin is working for E. Miller.

Friends regret to hear that Mr. Russel Glover is so ill and hope he will soon be well again.

Miss Bertie Hopkins, organist, is having choir practice at her home for the anniversary music.

MAPLE HILL

YOUNGSTER FALLS IN BARN, BREAKING ARM

There was a good attendance at prayer meeting last Friday night and all enjoyed the helpful message given by Rev. John Greening.

Although everyone missed the pastor, they enjoyed Mr. Greening's message on Sunday.

A Young People's meeting is held on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, S. T.

The graduation service for the pastor, E. Arthur McAsh, and others who are graduating this year, will be held in Jarvis St. church, Toronto, on Thursday evening, June 1.

A bee is to be held next Monday to paint and housecleam the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Hillary Stevens and little David, of Toronto, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Harry Knights.

Visitors at the home of Mr. David Love on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Traviss of Walton, Mrs. Norman McCulloch, of Harriston, Mr. and Mrs. J. Love of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. V. Kingswell of Weston and Mr. and Mrs. E. Scott and family of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Traviss had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Scott on Sunday.

Friends were very sorry to hear of the accident of little Harold Knights, who fell in the barn, breaking his arm, and dislocating his shoulder. A speedy recovery is hoped for.

MAJOR INDUSTRY

son & Weeks. These buildings could be enlarged, it was thought.

Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd informed The Era that the visitors had expressed themselves as very favorably impressed with the town.

Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale, chairman of the industrial committee, stated that the firm in question has a pay-roll of $45,000 a year, at the Friday evening meeting.

Councillor Wm. Dixon expressed doubt as to the desirability of bringing to Newmarket a firm which would make the minimum wage the maximum.

"If we could get a company that size, with a pay-roll of $40,000, it would pay us, even if it cost $30,000 to build a factory," said Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd. "And it would pay them to give us $1,000 a year rent for a modern factory."

Councillor Evans said that the firm was ready to pay $400 to $500 a year rent.

Councillor Frank Bowser said he was 100 per cent for the proposal.

"I am opposed to the principle of the town building factories," said Reeve F. A. Lundy. He said that there were acres of empty factory space in Toronto and empty factories in other towns.

On Monday evening Mr. Vale said that the industrial committee thought it would be a good thing for the town to have a modern factory building available for a new industry.

Councillor Frank Bowser said that his uncle, J. W. Bowser, had gone over the Dixon building, as requested, and had given a round estimate of the cost to fix it up. It has since been learned that this building is not available. He also estimated that a building 55x126 feet, four stories high, of steel and brick construction would cost $32,000.

Mr. Lambert gave the information he had gathered as a banker and gave his opinion of the proposal.

"I have always been of the opinion that we shouldn't go too far in financing other people in their business undertakings," said Reeve F. A. Lundy. "They should do at least 50 per cent themselves."

"They will say: What is a $50,000 pay-roll worth?" said Mr. Evans.

Answering the argument that the firm's wages would be the bare minimum, Mr. Evans said: "It is said that the minimum will be the maximum. We can't complain. The same is true here."

"This man is of a different calibre from some of the firms we have tried to get started here," said Councillor J. L. Spillette.

"Yes," agreed Councillor Higginson, "this firm is working for its own stores."

"This firm have good reasons for moving," said Dr. Boyd.

"Well, that's a good reason for them to pay 50 per cent of the cost of moving," said Mr. Dixon.

"The pay-roll averages $10 a week each," said Mr. Dixon. "With some getting more, some must be getting very poor wages."

Mr. Mathews said that Newmarket's two big industries had received bonuses of $29,000 and $10,000 when they established themselves here.

RUBY CASE IS BRIDE OF GREGORY SCOTT

The marriage took place quietly on Saturday, May 20, of Miss Ruby Case, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Case, Mount Albert, to Mr. Gregory Scott of Mount Albert.

Immediately after the reception, the happy couple left for Niagara Falls, returning home on Monday evening. The bride is well-known in Newmarket, where she lived for several years.

Taken ill with a heart seizure on Monday, she died the following Wednesday.

Surviving are: one brother, George Bales, Waterdown; four sons, George, Hamilton; Arthur, Roy, and Alfred, Newmarket; and one daughter, Edna (Mrs. Stanley Keetch), Newmarket.

Pallbearers were Jack Knowles, Charles Knowles, Robert Harmon, Bruce McClymont, Wm. Price and Charles Smith.

QUAKERS GATHER AT YONGE MEETING-HOUSE

Friends meetings were held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, at the Yonge St. Meeting-House, with people in attendance from distant points. There was a meeting on Friday, two meetings on Saturday, with temperance as the principal concern, and two meetings for worship on Sunday, with peace as the concern.

Those attending included the following: Joseph Clayton, Wm. Hallam, Eliza Hodgin, Deborah and Elma Haight, Maurice, Albert, Janet, Agnes, Bertha and Catherine, all from Norwich; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lapp, Lorneville; Rev. and Mrs. G. Raymond Booth, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Cody, Toronto; and many from Aurora, Newmarket, Gormley and district.

On Saturday a Young Friends meeting was held in Newmarket Friends church.

HOLD SURPRISE SHOWER FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

Some 30 relatives and friends of Miss Gertrude Ramsden, a bride-to-be, made a surprise visit to her home on Wednesday evening.

During the evening a shower of lovely and useful gifts was presented to her, followed by speech-making and singing.

A dainty luncheon was served. Following her marriage on Saturday, she will live at Hornepayne.

WAS TWO YEARS SHORT OF 50 WED

Little over a year after the death of her husband in his 83rd year, Mrs. Charles Stickwood died in her 82nd year at her home on Srigley St. on Monday.

Rev. A. J. Patstone of St. Paul's Anglican church conducted the funeral service this afternoon. Mr. Patstone and Mrs. Tom Leach sang a duet at the home. Interment was in Newmarket cemetery.

Devoted to her home and family, Mrs. Stickwood was always an inspiration to her husband and children. Mr. Stickwood, who died in February, 1938, was at one time a member of Newmarket town council. They were married 51 years on Feb. 2, 1938. They lived on their Newmarket farm 49 years.

Emily Julia Druery was the daughter of Julia Hammond and Thomas Druery of East Gwillimbury. She was the last surviving child of a family of 12.

She has been in ill health since the death of her husband, and broke her hip last November. She was in York county hospital from then until Easter.

Three children survive: Albert E., Herbert F., both of Newmarket, and Alice M., teacher of household science at Macdonald College, McGill University, Montreal. Miss Stickwood has been home since before her mother's death.

PEPPER AND SALT

The Newmarket softball squad starts off its schedule tonight. This first set-to is at Richmond Hill and gets under way at seven chimes.

New faces dot the line-up this season and the team shows great promise. Niles will be on the mound tonight. Welch is a new catching acquisition on the red and white squad and will get his chance to make good before long.

Let's get in the old bus and give the boys some support.

Joe Spillette is lining up some boxing shows for the summer. He is certain of securing good talent from his connections with experienced men in the mitt game. Benny Stockley, who is well known in Toronto, is a good pal of Joe's.

The sports program for the Old Boys' Reunion has a purely local flavor. Track and field events, and bicycle races are on the card and should be worth casting the specs over. The sports committee drew up plans the early part of the week.

GAME SPECTATOR STRUCK BY BAT

Last Friday night, during a softball game being played at Willow Beach, between Willow Beach and Mount Albert, Leslie Stevens of Mount Pleasant received a serious injury. Ray Pearson, Mount Albert player, accidentally let the bat slip out of his hands while batting, and it struck Mr. Stevens a terrific blow, slightly fracturing his skull, and cutting his eye.

Dr. O. B. Shillington of Sutton was called and had the injured man rushed to Sutton hospital. The latest report on his condition is that he is getting along fine and will soon be out again. Everyone wishes him a speedy recovery.

Following the accident, the game was called.

The Cherokee club will hold a social evening for members at the home of Mrs. Robert Smith, Poplar St., on Friday, June 3, at 8 p.m.

LOTS OF ROOM FOR DEBATE PROVIDED

The town council moved into a commodious new chamber on Monday evening.

The former relief office, the room adjoining the former council chamber, is now the council chamber. Following the fire which recently did considerable damage to the relief office, the property committee under Chairman Wm. Dixon renovated the room, had a new floor and a new ceiling put in and moved the council table in.

The council chamber now has ample space for members of the public who wish to attend.

ASSOCIATION MEETS FOR FIRST TIME

The Newmarket Home and School Association held its first regular meeting on Tuesday evening at the Stuart Scott school with 60 members in attendance.

Rev. Burton Hill, the president, was in charge. After the opening exercises and business routine, Gerald Rutledge gave two piano solos, which were very much enjoyed.

Dr. S. J. Boyd was the speaker of the evening, his subject being "Health," taken under the headings of eyesight, dental care, supervised play and toxoids.

A social hour was held at the close of the meeting. The next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 26, at 8 p.m.

ATTEND BANQUET FOR KING IN MONTREAL

Editor, The Era: Dr. Lewis and I having been at one time residents of Newmarket, I thought you might be interested in knowing that we had the honor of attending the banquet tendered the king and queen while in Montreal. It was an unforgettable event.

The setting was the historic Windsor hotel, gorgeously decorated and guarded by the "Mounties" in their colorful uniforms. There were nearly a thousand guests assembled in the two banquet halls and we were all in our allotted places fully 20 minutes before the "great moment." Some of us were tense and anxious, but all of us were happy.

At last the fanfare sounded. Instantly the huge throng was on its feet, all eyes focused on the entrance, as our king, serious of mien, but stately and kingly came into view, followed by a smiling vision of loveliness—our Queen Elizabeth, and took their places. But to most of us the matter of partaking of food seemed very commonplace compared with the fleeting opportunity of gazing upon those two well beloved and outstanding figures in the world today.

And, when all too soon, they passed from our sight, one could hear the murmur of the fervent prayer, "God bless them."

Sincerely yours,
(Mrs. E. D.) Esther T. Lewis.

ETHEL CHAPMAN HEARD BY 23 BRANCHES OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

Representing some 23 Women's Institutes, a large number of ladies attended the 32nd district annual meeting, held in Trinity hall on Thursday morning and afternoon of last week. The meeting was held under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ralph Willis. Vandorf, the district president.

Acting-Mayor J. A. Knowles officially welcomed the members at the afternoon meeting.

"The women's organizations carry out works that the men cannot do," he said, referring to the Women's Institute as one of the oldest women's organizations in the province. He expressed his satisfaction in the fact that a group of ladies was interested in community work, which could not always be carried out with municipal backing.

Mr. Knowles urged the women to take an increased interest in reforestation. He was only a layman in this work, he stated, but said that after two years' interest in it he was certain of the need for it.

THIEVES FIND CRIME DOESN'T PAY MUCH

"Small time" burglars had their innings on Monday morning this week when they succeeded in breaking into a gum vending machine attached to the front of B. G. Whitelaw's store on Yonge St.

Reg. Southwood discovered the burglary when he came to work at the store at 8 a.m., and found the machine lying on the sidewalk, the thieves having pried it from its base on the wall.

The machine sold gum at a cent a piece, and it had a maximum capacity of $2.50, so it is doubtful if the thieves were very well paid for their time. The "job" is believed to have been done between 3.30 and six in the morning.

FEUD ADDS INTEREST TO CYCLING TOURNEY

The Aurora Cycling Club will hold a ten-mile race on Thursday evening of this week, starting at the Aurora United church at 7 p.m. The event gains in interest with the news that for two of the club members, Jim Murray and Bob Benville, the race will be something in the nature of a feud, with both lads bearing a "I'm better that you are" chip on their shoulders.

OLDEST RESIDENT OF KING TOWNSHIP DIES IN HER 98TH YEAR

MRS. DANIEL GLASS PASSES FRIDAY; THREE GENERATIONS MOURN

King township's oldest resident, Mrs. Daniel Glass, died on Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Wells, in King. She was in her 98th year.

Mrs. Glass came with her parents from England as a young girl, and the family took up residence near what is now Trinity Square, Toronto, where she was one of the first members of Trinity Anglican church. The family later moved to Richmond Hill, and 76 years ago she married Daniel Glass, who died in 1912.

She has lived in King City for the past 26 years, after a brief residence in Oak Ridges and on Yonge St.

There survive four daughters: Mrs. A. Keffer, B. C., Mrs. George McDougall, Barrie, Mrs. A. B. Wells and Mrs. Charles Neill, King; and four sons: Leonard, of King, Norman, of Richmond Hill, and Ernest and Harvey, of Aurora. There are also 18 grandchildren and a number of great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon from All Saints Anglican church in King City, with Rev. E. W. G. Worrall officiating, and with grandsons as pallbearers. Interment was made in King cemetery.

IN-AS-MUCH CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL MEET; MRS. A. A. COOK NAMED HEAD

Mrs. A. A. Cook was elected president of the In-As-Much club at the club's annual meeting and banquet, held on Tuesday evening. Mrs. F. Freeman and Miss M. Chapell were named honorary presidents.

Mrs. Hutchins was appointed vice-president; Mrs. G. Beach, secretary-treasurer; Miss Jean Powell, critic; Miss Mildred Graham, historical; Mrs. D. Galbraith, Mrs. E. Pinder, pianists; Mrs. D. McCluskey, Miss R. Chapman, Miss M. Teasdale and Mrs. E. Pinder, entertainment and flower committee.

The club picnic will be held at Musselman's Lake on June 21, it was decided.

Mrs. F Freeman, founder of the club, gave a talk on her travels in the United States. Other items on the program were: Emily Teasdale, piano solo; Vivian Beach, recitations; Harold Foote, solo; Mrs. C. Bilbrough, reading; Howard Case, Clifford Clubine, duet; Rena Buckindale, Miss L. Atkinson, duet.

COMPLAINS AGAINST GARDEN DESTRUCTION

A written complaint, protesting against the "ruthless destruction of gardens in Aurora," has been received by The Era this week.

"Last Friday night someone entered Mr. Large's garden on Ransome St., and tramped all over the flower beds," the complaint declares. "There are deep footprints scattered through, and some of the choicest plants have been ruined.

"This is not the first time this garden has been molested. The damage seems to be done by someone who is familiar with the garden, and appears to be done out of spite. The authorities are investigating," concludes the complaint, which is signed by W. Large.

CO-OP GUILD MEETS

An hour of outdoor recreation will precede the usual program of the meeting of the co-operative ladies' guild at the home of Miss Jennie Patrick on Centre St., on Tuesday evening. Hostesses for the evening are Miss Leva MacDonald, Mrs. J. Hagen, Mrs. W. C. Reid, Mrs. C. Bilbrough and Mrs. Gordon Baldwin.

The Aurora branch of the Sons of England will hold a church parade to the Aurora United church, on Sunday evening. The members will meet at the lodge hall at 6.30 p.m.

M. O. H. FINDS ONLY TWO MEASLES CASES

"There have been four cases of measles in town," Dr. C. R. Boulding, M.O.H., stated in answer to an Era inquiry this week. "There are only two at present.

"I would urge parents to keep their children away from school if they have it," the health officer continued. "A hard, dry cough and feverishness usually precedes the eruption."

It was in this early stage that it was particularly communicable, The Era learned.

ANOTHER YONGE ST. SHOP GOES MODERN

Following the trend in modernity started along Aurora's Yonge St. last summer by Dawson's Grill and the Aurora Dairy, John Morning is having a new front put on his store.

Green vitrolite, trimmed with chrome, will be used on the front, and the doorway will be moved nearer the centre to provide two show windows, instead of one. The interior of the store has already been altered by moving the soda fountain to the rear of the store.

The work on the store front is being done by the Aurora Building Company.

"STORY HOUR" KIDDIES WILL GO FOR HIKE

Children who have been attending the "Story Hour" classes on Saturday morning at the Aurora public library during the past winter, will pack their lunches and meet at the library at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning, to go on their annual hike.

ABOUT TOWN

BAD PUBLICITY

We most heartily agree with Dr. Underhill in deploring the "unfair publicity" given Aurora because of the nomination of one Charlie McCarthy at a nomination meeting some weeks ago. We cannot, however, agree with his inference that such publicity was the fault of the press.

It is the business of the press to report the news. If they fail to report it accurately they can readily be called into account. If a mistake appears, it appears for all to see, in black and white.

The fact that Charlie McCarthy was nominated was not the fault of the press, and the local press, at least, would be falling down on its job if it failed to report nomination meetings.

Anyone with even casual knowledge of affairs in Aurora knows why Charlie McCarthy was nominated, and who were responsible for such a situation coming into being. Such a situation was damaging to the good name of Aurora—but the press is not to blame for that.

Had Dr. Underhill referred to the situation in council as being responsible for the bad publicity, his remarks would have shown a better appreciation of the problem confronting the electors at the present time.

GOOD PUBLICITY

Aurora, situated on one of the most travelled highways in Canada, is justified in looking for business from the passing throng of cars that pass through it each day. It is good business, therefore, to make our section of Yonge St. as attractive as possible to passers-by.

Bright, well-kept store fronts and well-arranged windows attract business. The attractiveness of one store helps bring better business to all.

We are delighted, for this reason, to see that another Aurora store-front has taken on a new garb, and one calculated to stop some of the cars that would otherwise pass through the town.

Aurora has a fine group of stores, many of which have wares of especial interest to the tourist. Let's do all we can to get our share of the tourist trade.

FINE PUBLICITY

Nobody likes to pay fines, and on several occasions we have heard disgruntled tourists complain about the "fine" publicity of Aurora. They refer to the fact that if they speed through this town they may have a trip to court. These trips do not add to the good-will of tourists who pass through.

For this reason, some merchants would be happier if fewer tourists were fined.

Much as we would like to agree with this point of view, it should be remembered that the present speed limits are quite adequate to the proper handling of traffic.

The speed limits are well known, and Aurora has taken special care, by erecting larger-than-usual signs, that the motorist should be reminded of the fact that 30 miles per hour is top speed for motor traffic in this town.

The public safety depends on the enforcement of the speed laws, and our constable would be falling down in his duty to the public if he allowed speedsters to go unchecked.

It is better that tourists lose a few minutes time by travelling at the proper speed—or lose a few dollars in court—than that we should lose a few lives. Our police can well be commended for their attempts to see that the speed limit is observed.

REBEKAHS CELEBRATE 25TH ANNIVERSARY

The musical portion of the program will feature Mrs. Peter Fobert, Aurora, as guest soloist.

Members of the fellowship group of the Baptist Y. P. S. had charge of their program on Monday night, putting on a Bible drama. The worship service was under the topic, "Loyalty."

Rev. Terry Hart, of Camilla, will be among the group leaders at Camp Ashunyoong, Sibbald's Point, from June 29 to July 5.

Council Asks Walton To Stand For Mayor

VOTERS WILL CHOOSE MAYOR FRIDAY

The ghost of Charlie McCarthy, famed as a ventriloquist dummy, again stalked into Mechanics' hall on Friday, nomination night. He was introduced this time by Dr. E. V. Underhill, who objected to the publicity given by the press on the occasion of Mr. McCarthy's name appearing on a nomination form when last Aurora sought a candidate for mayor.

Dr. Underhill stated that the nomination was a forgery, as the names appearing on the nomination form as mover and seconder were C. Willoughby and E. Bergen. There was no one named either Bergen or Willoughby in Aurora, Dr. Underhill contended.

Those nominated on Friday night were Dr. E. V. Underhill, proposed by W. J. Sisman, and seconded by Councillor Ross Linton on one form, and by T. Hamer and J. Crocker on another form; Howard J. Morton, proposed by B. Seaton and W. Palmer; and J. M. Walton, proposed by W. Large and R. C. Swerdfeger.

Early Saturday morning it was learned that Dr. Underhill would not run, and this, together with the report that Mr. Walton would not contest an election, led many to believe that there would be no election.

However, at the instigation of W. J. Sisman, a petition was circulated, urging Mr. Walton to run, and this, coupled with a visit from the council, apparently resulted in Mr. Walton's decision to make an election of it, and by the time the final hour for qualifying had come, there were two candidates in the field, as Mr. Morton had qualified early on Saturday morning.

"I offer my appreciation to the gentlemen who nominated me," said Dr. Underhill. "I was unable to attend the last nomination meeting on account of my wife's illness. I didn't think a man should be nominated when he was not present.

"It was a few years ago that I asked the town to support me for mayor and it saw fit not to," he said. "Unfortunately, I cannot say now whether I can accept the nomination. My wife is not well and is under severe nervous strain."

Dr. Underhill said he would consider the matter and decide by nine o'clock on Saturday evening, when the nominations closed.

"It is unfortunate that unfair publicity regarding Charlie McCarthy was given by our papers," he continued. "I think it was a forgery. There is no Bergen or Willoughby in town."

Dr. Underhill referred to his experience on the high school board, which he suggested might be considered a "senate" for former members of council.

"I learned plenty on the high school board," he declared. "If I decide to stand I will look for your support."

Howard Morton spoke next, saying that he had not been at the previous nomination meeting, either.

"It is not necessary to wait for tomorrow night to learn whether I will run or not," Mr. Morton stated. "I will be a candidate."

"As to my qualifications, the fact that I have not served on council is the one thing that should elect me," Mr. Morton said. "I have no prejudices and am tied by no strings.

"I will do things the way I would do them in my own business," he said, voicing his belief that business training would be of great value to a mayor.

Mr. Morton assured the meeting that his campaign would be a clean one and that personalities would have no part in it.

"I have nerve enough to ask for your support," he said. "The issue lies between a man with some previous experience and one with no experience, no strings and no prejudice. I challenge you to put me into office and see if I can make a good job of it."

J. M. Walton was not present to address the meeing, but arrived shortly after its conclusion.

CANDIDATES SAY:

The Era has been given the following signed statement by Howard Morton.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

"On Friday you will go to the polls to elect a new mayor. Since it is impossible for me to meet all electors, I take this opportunity of soliciting your vote and influence to secure my election and to thus provide Aurora with an active, progressive mayor.

"I offered my services to the town publicly three weeks ago at a time when it appeared no one would accept the office. Anyone else desiring to run for mayor had ample opportunity to announce their candidature before the nomination meeting.

"At the last nomination meeting, one nominee declined and the other was not even present. Accordingly, I qualified early Saturday morning. My opponent, under pressure from the majority of the present members of council, finally decided to oppose me—shortly before the closing time for nominations.

"Therefore, it can honestly be said that I did not cause this election. If I have done nothing else, I have given our town of Aurora a mayor.

"I believe every voter has the right to vote according to his convictions. I do not believe that the voters of this municipality approve of the actions of the majority of council in openly backing my opponent and using their influence on his behalf.

"I am criticized because of my vocation, my youth, and because I have had no previous municipal experience. I would point out that the council has shown little regard for dignity or experience in its present term.

"The very fact that I have had no municipal experience is one reason why I should be elected. My record is clean and I have no local pets or prejudices. I am therefore free to deal with the town's business in a straightforward way, with the town's best interests at heart.

"I make no promises as to what I will do if elected, except that I will endeavor to bring sincerity and hard work to bear on your problems.

"I will apply the same business-like methods to the affairs of the town that I have successfully used in my own business during the past twelve years.

"Give a young man a chance!

"(sgd.) Howard Morton"

"I have nothing to say," J. M. Walton stated in answer to an inquiry from The Era on Wednesday. "The people will speak more effectively than I can, on Friday."

Earlier in the week, Mr. Walton told city reporters, "I seem to be a pinch hitter. The Aurora council was in a turmoil when the members asked me to take the mayor's chair in 1921, and now they want me again to settle something. I was mayor for six straight years, but never was in an election fight. I was acclaimed every time.

"I don't want the job particularly. I'd much rather loaf around at my summer home at Kettleby than attend council meetings on hot summer nights.

"Council came to me in a body and asked me to run. I told them that if council, unanimously and officially, asked me to take the seat and if they could show me a petition with the names of 100 of the leading people in town to support me, I would run. They did, and I qualified."

Many Reasons For Co-Op's Troubles, Speaker States

AGNES MACPHAIL TELLS OF NEED FOR BUSINESS MANAGEMENT

"I am entirely comfortable in a community where the co-operative is in difficulties," Agnes Macphail, M.P., told a meeting under co-operative auspices at the Aurora high school on Thursday night of last week.

"There are many reasons why co-operatives should have difficulty," she declared. "We have an educational system in this country that turns people out without any understanding of the economic structure of the society in which they live. Our whole attitude of life on this continent has been contrary to the principles of co-operation."

Another reason for co-operative difficulty was that the principles of co-operation had been spread in many communities by men who were essentially idealists, she said. When a co-operative was organized these men often were placed at the head of the society, when what was really needed was a "dollar and cents" business man, Miss Macphail stated.

"The idealist is almost never the person who should run the business," the speaker said. "Sometimes we put in charge of the business somebody who is the son of the chairman of the board.

"When co-operatives are first organized there is a great deal of enthusiasm," she said. "Later they go to some other store for a bag of flour, and find sometimes that on certain articles the prices are better in other stores. Then they start saying that they can't get anything any cheaper at the co-operative.

"It takes intelligence to be a co-operator," Miss Macphail said. "It is no place for petty people. Co-operators must have a consciousness of their responsibility to the community. They must be able to hang on when the going is hard. If you have enough of that kind of person nothing can happen to you.

"Another difficulty is that we find sometimes that we are led by a doctrinaire co-operator who Page 6, Col. 4

YOUNG PEOPLE PLAN TEN-TEAM SOFTBALL LEAGUE SCHEDULE

PHOTOGRAPH CONTEST ALSO TO BE SPONSORED BY CHURCH GROUPS

Under the chairmanship of Vera Hunter, of Laskay, representatives from the Young People's Societies of the district met in the United church at King City on Monday night, and a goodly number of decisions were reached.

As a result, there will be a ten-team softball schedule drawn up for the various churches in the presbytery. Those competing will be King City, Laskay, Temperanceville, Pottageville, Victoria Square, Mount Pisgah, Wesley, Queensville, Sharon and Ravenshoe.

A photography contest will be held in the fall, it was decided, and this will be sponsored by the culture department under the direction of Boyd Mount, of Victoria Square. It is expected that a large number of photographs taken this summer will be entered.

Kenneth Partridge, of Brampton, will be delegate for the district at an interdenominational convention to be held in Amsterdam, Holland, in July. Some 50 Canadian representatives will attend the convention, which will include all creeds except the Roman Catholic, Greek Catholics, however, will attend.

HOCKEY STAR HAS APPENDIX REMOVED

Eugene "Joint" McComb, who has starred on the forward line of Aurora's junior hockey team for the past two years, and who for the past year or so has been working in the tannery of this town, started work in the tannery in Newmarket on Monday morning.

By the end of the day "Joint" had taken still another position —on the operating table at York County Hospital, where he had his appendix removed.

Team mates and hockey fans in both towns are pulling for a speedy and complete recovery for the high-scoring puckchaser, who has still a year or two of junior hockey under his belt.

PLAY AT BOND HEAD

Roy DeLaHaye took his Bradford band to Bond Head on Sunday night to take part in the celebration of the visit of the king and queen. They played a half-hour concert of patriotic airs before the service, which was held at the United church there, and played for the Orangemen and Boy Scouts, who paraded to the service.

Miss B. M. Andrews was elected secretary-treasurer. Election of the various committees was not completed in all cases, and announcement of these will follow a later meeting.

A report of the recent festival was given, and the meeting reviewed plans and suggestions for further improvement of the festival in the future.

KING COUNCIL ASKS BANK TO STAY OPEN

The regular meeting of King township council was held at the parish hall, Kettleby, on Saturday, May 29, with all members present.

The council drew up a petition to the King branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, requesting that they continue full time as previously, and regretting the proposed closing at King to three days a week, which, the council felt, would inconvenience many of the bank's clients, including the council.

The council requested and instructed, in view of the fact that several doctors were now rendering bills to the township board of health, instead of to the council, that all bills be rendered direct to the township clerk, with the exception of those for three or four illnesses specified by statute.

It was decided to purchase a Workmen's Compensation insurance coverage policy from John McAllister, local agent for A. E. Wilson and Co., for $700, with a premium of $35 per thousand.

Road Superintendent C. Black was asked to notify all truckers working for the township to carry their own insurance for compensation, public liability and property damage.

A cheque for $50 was issued to Chas. Ross, as payment on his 1938 salary.

The North York Revolver and Gun club was authorized to have target shooting on Aubrey Doan's farm for the balance of the year, providing all the members obtained the necessary permits.

The relief officer was instructed to send a registered letter to Toronto regarding a relief recipient in the township whom the council regarded as an able-bodied man who should be self-supporting, and whose relief will be cut off unless he can show just cause for not being able to work.

Frank Chapman and Ed. Reddick were each paid $50 on account.

The following accounts for transporting the school children to Toronto, were passed: H. Patrick, $13; J. Gillham, $12; R. Hollingshead, $10, $12; Carl Williams, $9; W. J. Regan, $18.50; T. E. Bell, $15.50; King City Motors, $27.50, $5.50; Arthur Wellesley, $46.75.

Objection to the amount of the last account resulted in a vote as follows: for, Mr. Goodfellow, Mr. Graham, Mr. Legge, Mr. Barker; against, Mr. MacMurchy.

Other accounts included: Arthur Wellesley, school attendance work, $4; Banner Press, royal visit advertising, $14.69; Banner Press, printing contract and extras, $420.88; Gus. Farquhar, constable services (May), $13; Town of Aurora, re Ferguson fire, $40; Maurice Hayward, constable services, $4.25; Canadian Institute for the Blind, $20.

H. G. Rose, registrations, $1.15; H. Wood, cartage, 50 cents; R. L. Boag, registration fees, $3.65; House of Providence, $36; W. E. Dale, P. V. Schomberg, $3.25; C. Maynard, P. V. Schomberg, $59.25; Smart Turner Machine Co., P. V. S. fire truck, $98.72; Nobleton post office, stamps, $9; Thos. MacMurchy, telephone, $3.51.

Road voucher, No. 12, $378.51; road voucher No. 13, $644.60; road voucher No. 14, $94.38; relief account, $397.22.

Toronto General Trust Corporation, overpayment on J. S. Sloan property, west half, lot 30, concession 3, $2.

The meeting adjourned to meet at Armstrong's hotel, on Saturday, June 24.

EVERSLEY

MRS. DANIEL GLASS DIES IN 98TH YEAR

Mrs. MacLaren and Mrs. McVittie of Toronto motored out to visit Miss Tinline on Sunday, and made telephone calls to other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. A. Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson's mother, Mrs. Bracewell, of Toronto, were home at "Scots Wha Hae," on Saturday afternoon. John's hobby, apart from teaching school and beautifying his island in Black Lake, Haliburton, is bees, so he looks after the ones at "Scots Wha Hae," where the bees are "as busy as a bee," among the forest of blossoms that have crowned the spring.

Walter Gellatly sprained his ankle on Saturday night. He was up at the farm choring for his brother Ernest, who has been ill with a return dose of grippe and throat trouble. This is hard on a busy farmer, and also hard on a very busy carpenter like Walter. On Monday, after viewing their majesties, Allan Gellatly filled his car with the family connections and spent the remaining hours doing heroic farm work up at the farm, and again on Empire Day.

The two granddaughters, Audrey and Eileen, remained at their grandmother's from Monday till Wednesday night, enjoying to the full the country out-of-doors, the wild flowers and the surprises of the woods.

Be on the look out for the delicious meat substitute, morels. They have a liking for the piney woods, and in their season are much sought after.

Rev. Mr. Bowman of Maple was the minister at Eversley on Sunday. He and Rev. Mr. Burch were exchanging for this special day, speaking on "The church and its work."

The attention of the Ferguson family is called to the Ferguson clan reunion, to be held on Saturday, July 1, at Cedarbrae school, Georgetown, with the superintendent, Miss Jessie Oliver as hostess.

The correspondent regrets to chronicle two deaths in King City, so closely identified with Eversley.

John McCallum died on Wednesday, May 24, aged 84, after a series of strokes that came at intervals over several years. He was the husband of Esther Troyer, who with a daughter, Mrs. Charles Ball, of Maple, are left to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father.

Mr. McCallum, after leaving his farm in King, settled in King City. The funeral service was from the home on Fisher St., on Saturday afternoon. There was a large attendance of friends and many old neighbors from Toronto.

The service was conducted by Rev. Douglas Davis of the United church, Rev. Mr. Galloway of the Baptist church, and the address was given by Rev. Robert Brydon, now retired in Aurora, who was Mr. McCallum's former pastor, neighbor and friend, having succeeded Rev. Dr. Carmichael as pastor at Strange.

Mrs. Daniel Glass, King's grand old lady, of whom everyone was so proud, passed away daughter, Mrs. A. B. Wells, in on Friday, at the home of her King City, after a few weeks' illness.

Mrs. Glass was in her 98th year. She was in good health generally, very bright and active, alert in mind and sound in body. Her hands were rarely idle. Beautiful fancy work and quilts were made by her. Her memory will never fade from the hearts of those who knew her, her family and many friends.

The funeral service was held in All Saints' Anglican church on Monday afternoon, with interment in King City beside her husband, who predeceased her many years ago.

Many Reasons For Co-Op's Troubles, Speaker States

insists that everything be done in a certain way," said Miss Macphail, making a plea for some elasticity in the application of Rochdale principles of co-operation. She stated that in Sweden, for example, instead of selling at the market price, they set out to break the monopolies which had existed there, and they set out to establish a fair market price.

Twelve per cent of the grocery business in Sweden was done by co-operatives, she said, and stated that this percentage was sufficient to enable the co-operatives to set a fair market price. Private ownership, public ownership and co-operatives all existed in Sweden, she stated, and this served to keep each on its toes.

"Even the co-operatives in Sweden haven't a monopoly," she declared. "It is an error to follow slavishly an exact plan. One way to start a co-operative right is to have members put in money with their membership."

In some places, Miss Macphail said, each member signed a note and these were used to establish a line of credit at the bank, paying interest only on the portion of it which was used.

"I think it would be very much better if each member could put in $25 in cash and accept three per cent interest," Miss Macphail said. "We should be willing to put some investment in consumption. A farmer will put thousands of dollars into production, but if you ask him to put money into consumption, he is aghast.

"If we borrow money from the bank the interest on it will cut into profits," she said. "We ought to put down cash with our shares. If you want to badly enough you can do it. Then you are away from pressure from the bank and the high cost of credit.

"Co-operatives must have sound business management, and those in charge should be business men," Miss Macphail said. "Before co-operation can be a success we must have a better conception of life. We must have a social conscience that will make it impossible for us to do anything that would harm a co-operative.

"So often, in Ontario, we set up a store and that is as far as we can go. We must go farther, into education, social services, etc. We cannot succeed in the mercantile field unless we develop a community spirit. Then you will get the drive that is necessary to go on.

"Having a store will not solve our problem. We will have to go into every field to get a new social structure.

Miss Macphail gave some of her observations on co-operative practices in Sweden, coupled with those of Denton Massey, who, she said, has spent more time in Sweden than she had.

For 37 cents a day anybody in Sweden could receive hospital care, including nursing and surgical attention, she said. Flowers were no longer so evident at funerals there, the money that would be so spent going into a "flower fund." The "flower fund" had built apartment houses with two-room-and-bath apartments for elderly people, she said, citing Sweden as an example of common sense to be followed by Canada.

"At present in Canada we have so much wealth in some places that it is an embarrassment and so little in other places that it is a humiliation," she declared.

Miss Macphail began her talk with some references to her experiences during the visit of the king and queen in Ottawa.

"The queen radiates beauty," she said. "She must be very fine or she could not look like that. She combines regal dignity with real friendliness."

Miss Macphail was introduced by Leonard Harman, following a program that featured baritone solos by Robert Hacking and recitations by Helen Evans. G. N. T. Widdrington was chairman of the meeting, which concluded with a lunch and dance.

IN LILAC TIME

By Alice A. Ferguson

If I should wed in lilac time,
In lilac time,
What wealth of beauty should be mine!
With bloom on earth, and blue above,
The fragrant air full throbbing love,
Beneath an arch of lilac blooms.
Inhaling love with sweet perfume.
I'd ask no other flower so fine,
For wedded bliss in lilac time.

If I should die in lilac time,
In lilac time,
Oh, heap my bier with lilacs fine, fine,
Place one white spray on my cold breast,
Like some pure dove come there to rest.
I'd breathe the dewy fragrance given,
Till I should breathe the air of Heaven.
No other time could be so fine,
Should I be called in lilac time.

THE CATBIRD BECOMES A NUISANCE

BY RUTH DINGMAN HEBB

"My those Redstarts are full of pep!" said Jenny, the House Wren, to Kitty Catbird. "They have been darting around here like butterflies, ever since they arrived in this garden."

"And the gentleman Redstart is certainly a great beauty," replied the Catbird, "with that orangy-red and black coloring of his. You simply couldn't mistake him for anyone else."

"His wife really isn't bad looking, either," said Jenny, "although nothing like as pretty as he is, of course. Instead of being black, she is a sort of greenish brown, and where he has bright orangy patches on his wings and tail, she has corresponding yellow patches. And her breast, throat and underparts are light gray."

"What family do the Redstarts belong to?" Kitty asked the Wren. "Of course, I should know, but I have forgotten."

"Why, the Warbler family," said the Wren. "And speaking of Warblers, there have certainly been all kinds of them around here recently. They all came together this year, early and late varieties, on account of the late spring."

"There's a pretty little Warbler flitting around near the ground in those shrubs, right now," said the Catbird. "What kind is he, I wonder."

"I don't see him, yet," said Jenny. "What does he look like?"

"He's a greenish yellow color, with clear yellow underparts," described the Catbird. "His whole head, neck and breast are bluish-gray, and he has a cluster of black spots on his throat and breast."

"That's enough," said the Wren firmly. "I know who it is, and I see him now, too. But I would have known from your description anyway. It's a male, adult Mourning Warbler. He gets his name from those black spots on his breast and throat, which make a black patch supposed to look like crape. So he is called a "mourning" Warbler. His mate is probably close by. She is very similar but has not the black patch, and the bluish-gray of the male is not nearly so pronounced in her costume, but is replaced by a dull grey."

"I wonder how long they'll be staying with us," observed the Catbird.

"We're going right along farther north tomorrow," said the Mourning Warbler himself, who had overheard the remark. "We are late Warblers as it is, and we have already delayed in this delightful spot too long. We'll be passing this way again during the last half of August. Although we are one of the latest Warblers to come in the spring, we are among the earliest of the returning birds."

"Yes, you usually have migrated in the fall before I have even thought about looking for you," said Jenny. "As a result I hardly ever see you at all. In fact, you are the first Mourning Warbler that I've seen for a couple of years."

"Well, we aren't very conspicuous people," admitted the Warbler, and without saying anything more, he darted off into the bushes and disappeared.

"Here comes a Robin," said the Catbird. "I wonder what he looks so puffed up about."

"Hello, Kitty, hello Jenny," said the Robin. "How are you folks this glorious morning?"

"Quite well," said Jenny, "but why are you so very happy?"

"I guess I have reason to be happy," replied the Robin jauntily. "I have five of the healthiest, huskiest, hungriest, and handsomest little youngsters that you ever saw. My wife and I have all we can do to keep them filled up with food. And they just yell their heads off if they don't think it's coming fast enough."

"I hope you don't expect us to believe that your children are handsome at this early stage in their youthful careers," said the Catbird. "If anything ever struck me as being plain, it's a very young Robin."

"Why, you miserable . . ." sputtered the Robin indignantly and made a dive of fury at the Catbird. He chased the Catbird a couple of times around the garden, but finally went away in disgust.

"I can't think why you said that," remonstrated Jenny, when Kitty came back.

"Well, some people annoy me very much," said Kitty crossly. "And there's another one that does. It's that Cardinal. Beautiful he may be, with that lovely red coat and that stunning crest, but I don't like him. Here I go after him."

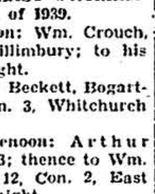

"Oh, please don't chase him away," begged the Wren. "It would be terrible if you frightened him away from this place, because everybody else wants him here." Her words struck deaf ears, however, and the chase went on.

"Oh, I do hope that the Cardinal and his mate will stick up for themselves and not let the Catbirds drive them away," mumbled Jenny to herself. "That would be awful. It certainly isn't as if the Catbirds were so popular, because they definitely are not. Oh dear, oh dear!"

Suggests Wider Teaching Of Preventive Medicine

law, replied to the address of welcome by Mr. Knowles, and stated that the motto of the Institute, "For King and Country," meant more this year than ever before, because of the visit of the king and queen.

Miss Gertrude Gary, of the department of agriculture, spoke of the work conducted by the department in short courses, etc.

Guest speaker for the day was Miss Ethel Chapman, who, she stated, had been inspired by an editorial by Dorothy Thompson: "If women would begin to realize that a world could be built from human values, instead of material values, the world could be changed in a short time."

"Women know the cost of human life and should know its values," declared Miss Chapman. She stressed the importance of knowing how to make a home happy for people to live in and the need for understanding ethical and home relationships.

Preventive work in health and child welfare were coming to the fore, Miss Chapman said.

"As Institute workers you have a chance to know of these things." Miss Chapman stated. "Do you help to give an opportunity for others to know of the value of such things as toxoid, pasteurization, etc.?"

She asked the women to urge upon others the value of preventive medicine. "People fear doctor's bills and wait too long for medical attention," she contended.

"This province is just ready for a movement in co-operation," Miss Chapman said. "There are groups urging it, but it needs concerted effort. Farming is a way of life, not just the means of making a living.

"Is education going human too?" she asked, in referring to the new curriculum in the schools. In her school days she had learned a number of things and studied a number of subjects that she had not used since, she said, and voiced her belief that the new studies contained more of what was actually needed.

In describing the church situation of twenty years ago, Miss Chapman said that when transportation was more difficult, and when larger families were the rule, there was a more definite need for many small churches throughout the country districts. She doubted, however, whether the need still existed to the same extent, and suggested that many of the smaller churches might find it worth while to consolidate with one another.

The Pefferlaw branch of the W. I. won the brief case for the best report for the year, Mrs. W. R. Steeper of Mount Albert making the presentation. Lakeside W. I. was also commended for its work.

Miss Betty Wallace spoke of the work of the Junior Institutes. The district annual meeting will be held next year at Keswick, it was decided.

The election of officers resulted in the following appointments: Mrs. Ralph Willis, Vandorf, president; Mrs. B. Sinclair, Mount Albert, Mrs. J. Cook, Schomberg, and Mrs. J. Baines, Keswick, vice-presidents; Mrs. J. Marchant, Schomberg, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Phil. Hamilton, Sharon, federation representative.

There is a good deal of sickness in the neighborhood. Stanley McCormack has bronchial pneumonia. Billie Wrightman is also in bed with the same trouble. Mrs. Bob Mitchell is just recovering from flu.

On Sunday, May 21, the Vivian Sunday-school was well attended. Fifty-three were present. In the evening Mr. Medhurst preached on the subject, "The Prodigal Son," impressing on his audience the truth that although people may wander, they finally realize there is no place like home. The Ratcliffe quartet rendered a suitable selection.

KETTLEBY

LIVED HERE AS YOUNG WOMAN, DIES IN WEST

News was received by wire on Tuesday of the death of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Heacock, sister of J. F. Curtis. The deceased, Libby Curtis, had resided in Calgary for many years. She was a daughter of the late John T. Curtis, and is remembered as one of the most amiable and respected young ladies of the community.

She married the late F. Wakefield Heacock, and in their early life they farmed on the third concession. Her husband was then appointed Deputy Registrar of Deeds under the late David Lloyd, and lived several years in Newmarket.

The province of Alberta was then opening up and experienced help of this kind was in demand, and he was appointed by the province of Alberta and worked several years in the registry office at Edmonton.

Mrs. Heacock is survived by a son, Aubrey, and two daughters, Hazel, Mrs. Bowen, and Mrs. Freda Leask of Edmonton.

Chloroform Him

The head of the business concern called in the chief accountant. Business had fallen off badly and the executive was definitely worried about it. When the accountant arrived the executive said:

"Read the reports to me, Addison. I'm anxious to hear the firm's profit and loss statement for the past six months."

The accountant nodded.

"Yes, sir," he stated sadly. "With or without anaesthetic?"
